About This Content

The BRIT PACK for Automobilista adds 3 classic british tracks with several different layouts along with 4 popular british club racing cars in various specifications to Automobilista:

TRACKS

- Brands Hatch
- Cadwell Park
- Oulton Park

CARS

- Ultima GTR (road & race version)

- F-Trainer (Novice & Advanced versions)

- MCR Sports 2000

- Caterhams - 270 (Academy series), 360R (Superlight Series), and the mighty 620R.

The tracks are classic venues from british motorsports heritage which have preserved their natural flow through the decades, perfectly suited for the rich british club racing scene being samples in this pack. All tracks are officially licensed and extensively researched with the aid of laser scan data.

The cars were produced in close collaboration with the manufacturers and input from several of their respective real world drivers during development.

Mind=blown. Play it. Now.. it is very boring. The graphics are old and out of date, but the game is fantastic. One of the all-time best turn based strategy games ever made. I've played this game for well over a decade and will likely put countless hours into this game now that I've found it on steam. Doesn't take much to learn the game, and is extremely fun.

If you like Civ5 or similar games, you should like this game.. I enjoyed it a lot. Quirky art style and fun Slavic myth.. Great platformer!

Tight, responsive controls, interesting level design, and gameplay that drives the player into a feeling of flow.

If platformers - like SuperMeatBoy, which comes to my mind as the best example of the genre - are your thing, I would fully recommend this one, too !

An excellent (and very affordable) top-down shooter with plenty in the mix between weapon and armor upgrades, challenges, objectives, solid controls, and varied enemies and terrain.. Wow I thought you were joking (really). I'll start by admitting at first that I was not overly impressed with the game and I shall explain why.

First thing I noticed was the NPC's dialogue were static cut-scenes based on hand drawn images with voiceovers and completely avoid of any animation. The next thing I noticed were the voiceover's were clearly the same person throughout with no change of pitch or any attempt to sound different from one NPC to the next. Also the game was completely devoid of any animation whatsoever through all the locations[except for some within the HOG scene itself]. (Though to be honest, these are minor gripes on my perspective and is a does not affect the gameplay whatsoever.)

Then I found some issues that could effect gameplay unless you utilised the "Hint System" (Which I usually avoid). Some of the object's required to progress either within a HOG scene or not were displaced towards the bottom of the viewable area and almost completely obscured below the games UI and without precise hovering almost onto the UI did you realise there was an selectable item. Finally was the constant issue with attempting to leave a scene with the selectable arrow not responding and sometimes having to resort to the MAP to get around. (These issues do effect the gameplay and could effect progression for the (achievements/completionist) unless you are aware of such prior.)

The reason I recommend this game was marginal to be honest as I did actually enjoy the playthrough once I accepted the aforementioned issues.

The story was "forgettable", the graphics and music were just above average and the HOG scenes were mostly combine various objects than your usual single selectable item lists. The puzzles were easy to complete, varied and some were actually quite interesting and extended throughout the story/plot. Expect around 3-4 hours playthrough time on average.

Based on the current price tag, including achievements and cards, I would just marginally recommend this. (Shame we did not have a NEUTRAL opinion TBH).. It's a short and easy Metroid but your guy doesn't turn out to be a woman at the end.. Pretty fun small game. Only logical to buy a Season pass - that way everything will be at a reasonable price.

Great DLCs, the best costumes in the franchise.

10V10. Awesome game, hard as balls and fun as hell. Music is awesome and the visuals as crisp!. Totaly awesome game, I wait with baited breath for every update. It's super fun and it's only gets better every time they improve it. Buy this and their other game, Convoy, ASAP.
